SDGS & Business

JOIN STUDENTS IN JAPAN AND ALL OVER THE WORLD!

About the Program

The United Nations' Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs) are moving towards becoming a "common global language," with businesses increasingly recognizing the importance of incorporating SDGs-aligned business strategies to address challenges. These challenges at once pose both risks and opportunities to create and capture meaningful markets while working toward global solutions to tackle issues of gender inequality, health and safety, sustainability, and other crises. In this course, learners will apply innovative strategies to generate solutions to SDGs-related issues through project and task-based learning while considering global perspectives. The course combines synchronous activities with multi-media, engaging asynchronous materials.

About the Program

Diversification of national and international work environments has precipitated an urgent need to provide cross-cultural communication skill development for learners.

Using multimedia content, this course focuses on developing skills that learners need to engage meaningfully and successfully with people from a wide array of backgrounds, targeting learners' understanding of identities and what that means for communicating across cultures.

The course combines synchronous activities with multi-media, engaging asynchronous materials.
